Abhijeet was still at his desk at 8 pm trying to tie up some loose ends with the Q.5

hope that tomorrow might be a more productive day for him. Abhijeet is the Regional Sale Manager in the Cooling Appliances Company. They are manufacturers of cooling appliances for household and industry needs. Abhijeet has been working in this company for the last ten years. He had joined as a Management Trainee from the campus ten years back and had risen through the ranks to become a manager of one of the regions. It is a middle management level position. His job paid him well and he had a good name as a tough and competitive sales person in the industry. He had to manage multiple roles - Working with his own production department, dispatch, his subordinates, distributors, important customers and resolving their conflicts made his job stressful. On the top of all this he had to achieve his sales targets with no compromises and excuses.

Of late since last one month he has been working hard to take the organization to a new level of market confidence. He has been attacking the customers of competitors with very low prices specifically to gain a large market share. His job involved travelling twenty days a month and due to this he was having some problems at his home front. His kid seven years of age was unable to adjust to his long absence from his home and was not keeping well. Though his wife was supportive, sometimes he used to feel that he is not doing enough justice to his family in the sheer work pressure of his job. Sometimes this took his toll on his health and he was not well for a couple of days – complaining of headache and high blood pressure.

- When the pressure became intense he thought of quitting his job and starting a Q.5 small business of his own so that he can at least take proper care of his family. As he was brooding over these thoughts his General Manager called up from Bangalore. Tomorrow he should reach Mumbai early morning for an urgent meeting with a client who was planning to come up with 300 ATMs in the coming financial year. But he had already committed to his son that he will be accompanying him for his annual skating championship final at the school. As he left for the day it seemed that he would be no more able to take the pressure.
  - 1. Evaluate the nature of job that Ravi is doing at present. Why sales jobs are high pressure jobs?
  - 2. Do you think Rayi is motivated to do his sales job? Why? Suggest some strategies for helping him cope up with his present dilemma. (7)

Q.5 Greenland Paper company is located in an agricultural belt about 300 kilometers from a metro city. It makes writing and printing paper. Its primary raw material is wheat straw. Last year, the company had a turnover of Rs. 200 crores on a volume of 54,000 tons of paper. While preparing the business plan for the current year, the top management was concerned with the following distribution issue which they want 'you ' to help them resolve:

> The paper industry is dominated by selling agents who bring the manufacturer like Greenland and the buyers like printing/publishing companies, note book makers etc. together. The manufacturer sells the paper to the end user customer on the advice of the selling agent. The agents make a commission of about 2 percent on all transactions.

Some relevant points in this business are:

- Greenland depends on about 110 agents to canvass business for it from the users
- 2. The company also sells about 23 percent of its paper directly to some government organizations
- 3. The agent arranges for the buyer to pay the company for its product by advance demand draft. It is expected that the agent provides the credit support to the buyer.
- 4. Agents are not exclusive for Greenland and work for other paper mills as well. They play various tricks with all these paper mills. They have a grip on the business and are reluctant to put the mill directly in touch with the buyers

A company needs to know its customers base and their yearly requirements in order to decide the price, plan quantities and the profitability. If Greenland does not know who is buying the products, which variety and in what quantity, how can they plan for their sales and profitability?

- 1. How can you help Greenland to become less dependent on sales agents and plan its sales and profitability better (7)
- 2. How can the company plan their customer service efforts (7)
