Q.5		According to newspaper article (The telegraph, Kolkata, 17 March 2009), prominent multinational FMCG (fast moving consumer durables) companies manufacturing washing soaps and detergents are short changing their consumers. The report listed all popular brands (marketed by Procter and Gamble and Hindustan Lever among others) that were being sold with a marginal increase in price of detergents thus sold worked out to be substantial 15-40% and naturally consumers were taken aback by this revelation. Most consumers who were interviewed for the resorting to such mechanism. Although the weight of packaged material was declared on the pack in compliance with consumer protection laws-it was going unnoticed by many unsuspecting consumers. This gave rise to increasing consumer grievances. The marketing strategy adopted by these MNC create lower impact on the direct realization per pack but higher net gain for the company. Ethics call for transparency in deal and pricing which was not evident in such marketing deals. The marketing strategy was so worked out that it can camouflaged the real increase of the price in price sensitive market and tried to avoided consumer attention	14

Q.5 Ketan Parikh is a notorious name in the annals of India's securities market. 14

He used an ingenious technique to get public funds for his price-rigging operations. As the Indian Express reported, Ketan Parekh had close to INR 2,000 crore to play around with during the month prior to his arrest in 2001. Securities and Exchange Board of India's (SEBI) preliminary enquiry unearthed the fact that Ketan got around INR 670 crore from corporations such as Zee and HFCL whose shares he was ramping up. Both Zee and HFCL had raised this money for business purposes but diverted it to Ketan unauthorisedly. Though Zee reported that it gave funds to Ketan to buy a stake in entertainment firm ABCL and television channel B4U, both these firms denied that they were selling their stakes to Zee. Ketan had also borrowed INR 250 crore from Global Trust Bank, against the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI) norms. He was ramping up Global Trust Bank's shares too with a view to getting a good deal at the time of its expected merger with UTI Bank. Ketan and his associates got another INR 1,000 crore from the Madhavpura Mercantile Co-operative Bank despite the fact that RBI regulations ruled that a broker could get a maximum loan of INR 15 crore only.

Ketan's modus operandi was to ramp up shares of select firms in collusion with their promoters. In the Ketan 2001 Scam case, SEBI found prima facie evidence of price rigging in the scrips of Global Trust Bank, Zee Telefilms, HFCL, Lupin Laboratories, Aftak Infosys and Padmini Polymer. Though UTI denied any link with Ketan, it was found that UTI's purchases almost aligned with Ketan's buying in what are called the K-10 stocks, or those stocks that Ketan had been buying. UTI also purchased hitherto unknown stocks such as Arvind Johri's Cyberspace Infosys—Cyberspace interestingly, was the erstwhile Century Finance, which changed its name like many others, to sound infotech in order to take advantage of the boom in infotech stocks. Market rigging was found to be so obvious that the Bombay Stock Exchange (BSE) began investigating the sudden rise in prices of Cyberspace which sky-rocketed to INR 1,450 within a few weeks of its launching. However, its value fell below par as the investigation had started

Q.1 Discuss the concept of Price rigging and insider trading in the context of this case.

Q.2 Discuss briefly Ketan Parikh's modus operandi to ramp up shares of select companies.
