Student start-ups are going to play crucial role in nation building in India in coming decade. While students across campuses are now aspiring to take their innovations to user level, GTU is also gearing up to create a student start-up policy to support them. While many students are working for technology-based for-profit start-ups, many teams are also setting up social enterprise. We found that young students are not only creating value for money but also creating value for many. We noticed that many students across GTU affiliated colleges are aiming to set up social enterprises too across various sectors and space. We at GTU Innovation Council are bringing out 1st ever Social Entrepreneurship Boot camp to support such student start-ups through exposures, handholding and resource support.

S4 is arranging a two day Social Entrepreneurship Boot Camp at S4, Co-Creation Center (S4-C3) on 23rd and 24th August 2014. Interested participants can apply to participate by registering at:
